Need some SAT Prep help?

Through a special arrangement with the Peterson's Company, nationally known publisher of test preparation material, the Kinnelon School District is making available to all its students an opportunity, at no charge to the user, to get some top notch help.

Like any good tutor or SAT program offered by private concerns, the program prompts the user through a diagnostic SAT. It scores the test and then constructs a tailored prescriptive program for each user. Based on the results, the student can choose a long range, mid-range or short range plan and will be assigned lessons from both math and verbal, that address his/her specific needs.

An advantage is that a user can stop at any time, save his work, and come back later. The user can take advantage of a few minutes lull any time in the day. Juniors planning on taking the spring SAT should start preparing now with the long range plan. Sophomores could start honing their math and verbal skills in preparation for the PSAT next October. It is not too early for ninth and middle school students to start becoming familiar with the test. An advantage of this format is self-pacing and the convenience of using it any time or any place with a computer internet connection.
