

Children develop literacy related skills long before they are able to read. By reading aloud to your children, parents can help them acquire the necessary prerequisite skills they will need to learn to read in school. Being to read has been identified as a source of children's early literacy development, including knowledge about the alphabet, print, and characteristics of written language. Every day, make a quiet, restful place for twenty minutes. Put your child in your lap and read a book aloud. In the pages of the book you will find a tiny vacation of privacy and intense love. Reading to your little one is just like putting gold coins in the bank. It will pay you back tenfold. Your child will learn, and imagine, and be strong in himself.

Happy reading!
